Why You Should Earn Your ChFC®

The Chartered Financial Consultant® (ChFC®) is particularly attractive due to the recent changes in the CFP® Board's Standards of Professional Conduct since these two designations share the same core curriculum. (The ChFC requires three additional courses but does not require candidates to pass the 10-hour, comprehensive board exam the certification requires.) The ChFC designation provides industry professionals with the tools to perform comprehensive financial planning for their clients. ChFC designees are highly qualified to help clients:

- Achieve financial goals by analyzing their overall financial picture and by identifying their life and health insurance needs as well as personal property and liability risks
- Review their current income tax situation and develop strategies to reduce and defer income taxes
- Increase their retirement investments by preparing tax-advantaged retirement plans
- Identify investment opportunities and design a portfolio that conforms to their personal objectives and risk tolerance
- Conserve existing assets and build financial security for retirement through estate enhancement

The ChFC designation is awarded by The American College.

Save Two Years in Earning Three Designations*

Take advantage of duplicate requirements

Once you have earned one designation, it is easy to achieve a second, or even a third designation, because the programs share many of the same courses.

One of the “fast tracks” to earn all three insurance designations offered by The American College is to start with your ChFC®. You will benefit because you end up taking eight fewer courses over three designations.

1. Once you complete your ChFC taking the nine courses highlighted, you'll be able to earn your CLU® by taking just three additional courses instead of eight.
2. Once you complete your CLU you'll be able to earn your CASL® by taking just two additional courses instead of five.

“I passed 351 this morning and have now earned my CASL® designation in addition to my CLU® and ChFC®. I just wanted to let you know that I am a firm believer in your materials, passing eleven classes in less than three years, with a 100% passing rate!”

—Gene P. Berry, CASL®, CLU®, ChFC®

* Saving two years is based on the assumption that a candidate completes one course every three months.
